The Fish that Tries

With the aim of giving parents and educators some tips to help them control children's behavior and nurture their skills and talents, "To psari pou prospathi" (The Fish that Tries), written by Angeliki Thanou, was recently released by Patakis Publications. The 136-page guidebook includes a series of theoretical and practical examples, which along with skills exercises and suggestions for psychological and pedagogical applications can help parents and educators establish a healthy relationship with children while encouraging them to foster fertile dialogue and communication. Moreover, the book includes techniques and pointers on how to deal with everyday problems in school or at home. The book costs 10.50 euros.
